

John visits the Titanic exhibition in City West

On Thursday, my Dad announced, 'It is going to be an exciting day on Saturday. We are going to the Titanic exhibition.' 'That will be awesome,' I cried. On Saturday morning Dad called, 'Get dressed quickly because we are almost ready to go to City West.' I got into the car. I brought my DS with me. It took a long time to get there. It was in the City West Hotel. When I got there I saw the pictures first. One said 'Titanic Disaster Fund'. Next I saw the Warning Bell and a model of the Titanic. After that I saw the iceberg. I touched it. It was freezing cold. The water was 1,000 times colder than the iceberg. Next I saw a model of the Titanic under the sea and I touched a piece of the real Titanic. After a while we went to the Titanic gift shop. I bought a photo and a medal of the Titanic and a book about the exhibition. We had our lunch there. I had fun. Afterwards we went to a pub beside the airport. I had dessert there. Finally I went to my nana's to show her what I bought in the Titanic shop.

About the Author

John is six years old. He lives in Darndale with his Mammy and Daddy and his two sisters. John is in first class and wants to be a shipbuilder when he grows up.